With tremendous selection, industry-best pricing and service, you'll find comfort at Ames Walker®.

It's true that nearly half of us will develop leg health issues for which medical graduated compression hosiery will be recommended by a physician. It's equally true that people who do not yet have venous conditions choose to wear compression garments for the healthful benefits and comfort these products can provide.

For more than 15 years, we've built the Ames Walker reputation for having the greatest selection and best prices on our own line of graduated compression products, as well as other leading brands. We have always made our own products to the highest medical standards, right here in America, from carefully selected fabrics. Just as important, our Customer Support and Certified Fitters can help you select the proper product, size, construction and compression. There is nothing more important than our level of customer service.

If this is your first time ordering compression hosiery, we would first like to say "thank you" for giving us an opportunity to serve you. You are not alone when you're shopping Ames Walker. We'll help every step of the way to ensure your comfort and satisfaction. If you're returning to our catalog, thank you so much for the trust you place in us. We'll continue to deliver the widest selection, lowest prices and attentive customer service that has made us your choice for so many years.

Appreciatively yours,

Measurements Matter!

You will get the best results when your hosiery fits properly. Measure the circumferences of your left and right ankles, calves and thighs and legs lengths (for knee highs, measure from the floor to the crease in the back of the knee; for thigh high and pantyhose, measure from the floor to the crease behind the buttock.

More about how to measure on p. 78

How much compression should you wear?

Graduated compression hosiery fits tighter at the ankle than at the knee or thigh. That gradual lessening of compression aids circulation by encouraging blood to return to the heart from your extremities. The unit of measurement is millimeters of Mercury (mmHg), the same standard your doctor uses when taking your blood pressure. The higher the number, the more compression. Generally speaking, the more severe the condition, the more compression required. Proper fit is essential, which makes correct measurements of your legs important.

Mild 8-15 mmHg
Relieve tired/aching legs
Reduce minor ankle/leg swelling
Alleviate pain from mild varicose veins
Improve circulation

Moderate 15-20 mmHg
Reduce mild to moderate leg swelling
Relieve chronically tired/aching legs
Treat superficial or early varicose veins (spider veins)
Post-operative safeguard for less severe procedures
Help reduce risk of Deep Vein Thrombosis (DVT) for normal-risk patients and sedentary travelers

Firm 20-30 mmHg
Reduce moderate swelling, edema, leg pain
Treat medium-severity varicose veins
Apply post-surgery (vein stripping, schlerotherapy, EVLT per a doctor's recommendation
Help Reduce risk of Deep Vein Thrombosis (DVT) for higher risk patients
Prevent recurrence of venous ulcerations
Treat mild Lymphedema

Extra Firm 30-40 mmHg
Treat chronic venous insufficiency
Reduce severe swelling or edema
Treat more severe varicose veins
Relieve chronic leg fatigue and heaviness
Treat Moderate Lymphedema, DVT/Postphlebotic Syndrome

Severe 40-50 mmHg
For severe edema, Lymphedema, chronic venous insufficiency, in conjunction with management of open venous ulcers.

Always consult with your regular doctor!

"Excellent product, finally a pantyhose that fits. I have tried other brands but nothing came close to these for fit, best of all I am not pulling these up every five minutes as they stay put. I wear these for minor aching legs and warmth. They do both jobs very well. I will be ordering more."

Style 150

"I have worn these [Style 111s] for at least 10 years — every single day for work. Even with steel toe boots, they are comfortable and don't sag. The compression factor is great for the calves. You don't get any edema/swelling from the band being too tight. Extremely comfortable."

Anti-Embolism Stockings

These specialized Anti-Embolism Stockings are medically correct, graduated compression legwear. They are designed to apply maximum pressure at the ankle, while reducing pressure up the legs. This pressure improves the blood flow in your lower extremities reducing the risk of blood clots (embolism). These stockings also help reduce swelling and the build-up of excess fluids in your legs.

Foot Care & Hosiery Accessories

Over the years we've researched hundreds and hundreds of foot care products and hosiery accessories. The ones we like most you'll find here; and an even bigger assortment online.

Don't ask us! Ask our customers!

"Being a long-time hater of pantyhose of any kind, I loved thigh stockings because of the comfort, and now I can augment the silicone bands that hold up the stockings with "It Stays!" I wear stockings all day, every day, and no longer am I ducking into the ladies room to pull the thigh-hi's back up where they belong. Comfortable, flexible. Fabulous! I love this stuff."
