

ABOUT THE EDITORS

Dan H. Berger (editor-in-chief) is a graduate of Harvard College and Cornell Law School. He won the 1995 AILF Edward L. Dubroff Legal Writing Contest for an article on INS policies toward international adoptions. He is chair of the AILA Board of Publications, and has served on the AILA Vermont Service Center Liaison Committee for several years. He developed his interest in immigration in college, where he studied immigration history and taught English as a Second Language classes for adult refugees. He now specializes in serving academic clients for the firm of Curran & Berger in Northampton, MA.

Carine Rosalia-Marion (associate editor) is an associate attorney with Steffas & Associates, P.C., in Marietta, GA, where she practices immigration law, with a focus on intercountry adoptions. Ms. Rosalia-Marion recently presented the topic of adoption practices before a delegation of the French Central Authority, and her article on consular relations was recently published in the Georgia Bar Journal. She received her J.D. from Tulane University Law School, and also holds law degrees from France and England.

Amanda Shipley (associate editor) is an associate attorney with Tocci, Goss & Lee, PC, in Boston, specializing in business immigration law. She also manages firm business litigation matters. Ms. Shipley has practiced immigration law since 2005 and has extensive experience with a wide range of business- and employment-related immigration issues, including H-1B, L-1A and L-1B, E-2, and TN visas, PERM labor certification, and all categories of I-140s. Prior to commencing her career in immigration law, Ms. Shipley represented clients in employment and other litigation matters. Ms. Shipley's prior experience in litigation included representing clients before the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination and in the Federal District Court of Massachusetts. Ms. Shipley is a graduate of the University of Arizona cum laude (1998) and the Boston University School of Law (BUSL) (2002). She is also a member of the AILA and serves as a Mentor in the BUSL Alumni/Mentoring Program.

Irene Steffas (senior editorial consultant), of Steffas & Associates, PC, in Marietta, GA, specializes in adoption, immigration, and assisted reproduction technologies. She has distinguished herself as an expert in the area of intercountry adoptions by speaking at national conventions for the American Academy of Adoption Attorneys, AILA, and state continuing legal education seminars. She also has been serving the U.S. State Department's Bureau of International Information Program as a goodwill ambassador in such countries as Spain, Armenia, Kazakhstan, and Ukraine. Adoption agencies continue to seek her advice and assistance as they process visas for adopted children through the U.S. embassies, while foreign courts refer to her expertise as they request legal opinions on the rights of adopted children in the United States.
