Compression

- 8-15 mmHg Mild Support
- 15-20 mmHg Moderate Compression
- 20-30 mmHg Firm Compression
- 30-40 mmHg Extra Firm Compression

Suggested Levels of Compression

8-15mmHg Compression*

(Mild Compression) For men or women with tired achy legs and mild varicose veins. Recommended for first time users. This compression level is still more than twice the support of ordinary department store support stockings.

15-20mmHg Compression*

(Moderate Compression) For all day wear when tired achy legs hold you back from your active life style. Good for minor ankle, leg and foot swelling and spider or varicose veins. This compression level is great for travel socks - for long flights or automobile drives.

20-30mmHg Compression*

(Firm Compression) Good for moderate to severe varicose veins, post surgical usage, moderate edema and foot or leg swelling.

30-40mmHg Compression*

(Extra Firm Compression) For more severe cases of varicose veins or swelling where lower compression support stockings do not provide the required relief.

*Average compression in millimeters mercury pressure measured at the ankle.
