

keep it green

by Christine Esposito

Toy Story

We've all been there: Baby's favorite toy lands on the sidewalk or the restaurant floor. What to do? Carry a handy, travel-size pack of Dapple's new toy cleaner wipes. Developed by two moms, these wipes banish dirt and germs without harsh chemicals. $2.99/travel-size pack of 15; $6.99/canister of 35. 888/Dapple-1; dapplebaby.com.

Eco-laundering

Ecostore is a new-to-the-USA brand with an eye on the environment. Its liquid laundry detergent, which uses plant-based ingredients and organic eucalyptus oil for extra cleaning power, comes in a one-liter bottle that can do about 22 washes. $9.50; 248/932-5150; ecostoreusa.com.

Pretty Paint

Breathe easier during your next re-decorating project. Mythic Paint will help you spruce up without that "new paint" smell, volatile organic chemicals, or carcinogens. Select from the line's 1,200 colors in flat, egg-shell, semi-gloss, and gloss finishes. $17.49-$23.49/quart; 888/714-9422; mythicpaint.com.

Cheers!

Yellow + Blue organically grown wine from Argentina comes in sustainable packaging, proving you can drink well and be kind to the environment. Torrontes (white) and Malbec (red) varietals come in Tetra Paks, which are comprised of 90 percent less packaging than traditional bottles. $12; 610/458-9124; ybwines.com.

Christine Esposito is a writer and mother of two from New Jersey. To suggest products for this column, write to goodiesandgear@gmail.com.