Are you using the same products and cleaning techniques you've been using for years? Things change. There have been many innovative changes in cleaning products. It might be a good idea to consider some newer, greener, options. In the past, many people believed that less-toxic chemicals wouldn't work as well or would require greater effort. But today's green Jan/San product offerings are being manufactured by many mainstream companies and the certifying organizations such as Green Seal™ require extensive testing and proof of efficacy, not just the non-toxic chemical composition.
